

RCSI DEPARTMENT OF CLINICAL MICROBIOLOGY INVITES APPLICATIONS FOR

RCSI LEAD CLINICAL MICROBIOLOGY, PERDANA UNIVERSITY, KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA

RCSI, through its partnership with Perdana University (PU) in Kuala Lumpur licenses and delivers its five year Undergraduate Medical programme, as part of the Academic Medical Centre for Excellence. The programme is accredited by the Irish Medical Council, the Malaysian Medical Council, and the Malaysian Qualifications Agency. The programme has 300 students, of which first full-cycle cohort graduated in September 2016 with degrees awarded by RCSI and the National University of Ireland. The curriculum is delivered largely by a team of RCSI specialist academic leads. Malaysia offers an exciting location to work and live as a modern, culturally diverse, dynamic country, with a myriad of possibilities for onward travel.

RCSI invites applications for the position of Lead Clinical Microbiology to work on the RCSI-PU Undergraduate Medical programme. The position will be affiliated with the Department of Clinical Microbiology in RCSI Dublin. The roleholder will deliver the RCSI curriculum in the Department of Clinical Microbiology in the multi-cultural environment of Kuala Lumpur and liaise with the Department in Dublin on curriculum delivery, examinations, and research matters, ensuring academic quality and consistency across the RCSI campuses.

RCSI is seeking a medically qualified professional who is passionate about teaching, brings experience or seeks to experience working as an academic in an international environment, demonstrates initiative, openness, and resilience, and is keen to explore possibilities for research and extending clinical partnerships in the region. Further information on the position, the RCSI-PU programme, living in Malaysia, and the Department of Clinical Microbiology, is provided in the job description, which can be found on the RCSI careers webpage rcsi.ie/careers.
