

“ We are in our late forties. In our previous relationships, neither of us wanted children, so we were sterilised. Now we would like to have our own children. ”

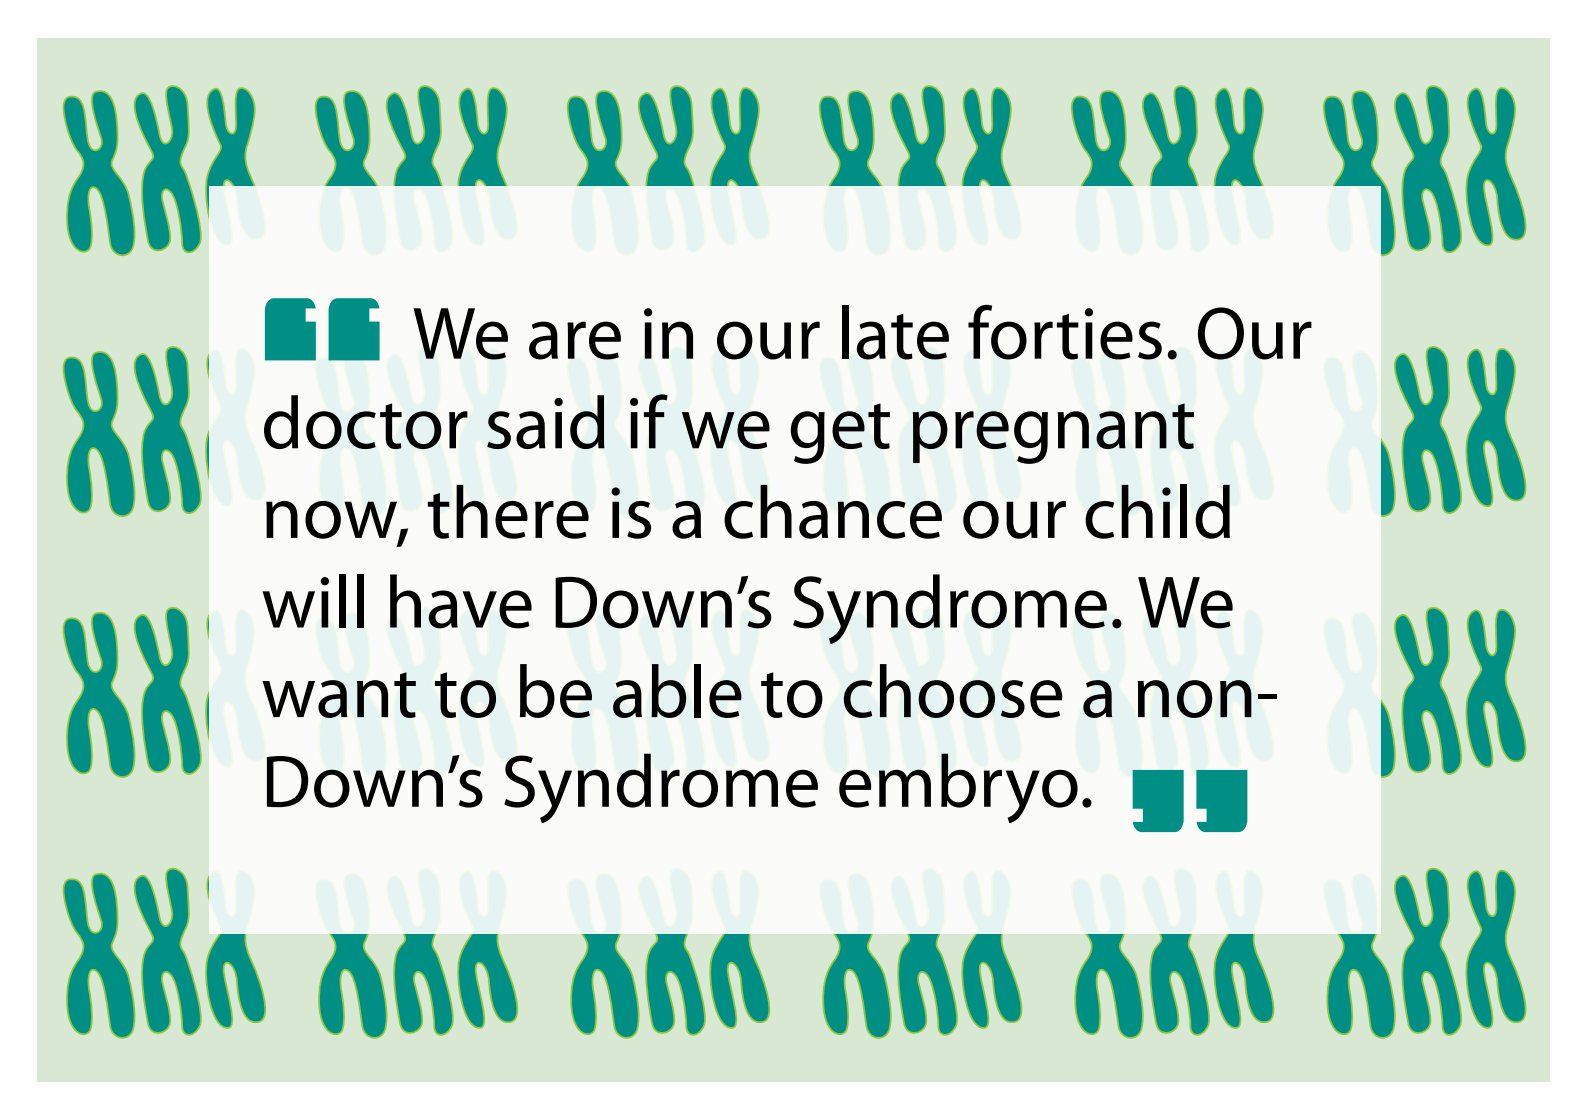

■ ■ We want our own biological children with our genes. It's not fair...we can't get pregnant naturally, and we don't want to start the adoption process which is very difficult. ■ ■

■ ■ In our culture, men are respected in society. We do not want another girl. We want to be able to choose which gender our baby will be. ■ ■

■ ■ My partner and I are deaf, and we would like to have a baby who is also deaf so that they fit in with our lifestyle. ■ ■

■ ■ We are in our late forties. Our doctor said if we get pregnant now, there is a chance our child will have Down's Syndrome. We want to be able to choose a non-Down's Syndrome embryo. ■ ■

■■ Our older child has thalassaemia. We need another baby with the same blood type, so that we have someone who will be available for a bone marrow transplant. ■■
